

Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (ED&I) Panel Discussion

Carrie Barnett

OAEA President

Art Educator

The Summit Country Day School; Cincinnati, OH

NAEA School for Arts Leaders 2017

Carrie Barnett lives in Cincinnati with her husband and pup. Her two kids are young adults - embarking on a life filled with music. She has 27 years of teaching experience, ranging from public school to private school and 1st grade to college level, with the last 19 years in secondary education. Carrie's love for art as a child led her to art education, which transformed her life to include a career she thoroughly enjoys.

Carrie's passion for art advocacy led her into leadership roles within OAEA which eventually paved the way to her current role as president of OAEA. She has been on several different panels serving as a voice for visual art educators. Carrie has been actively pursuing a greater understanding of equity, diversity, and inclusion through various programs and is eager to continue learning and growing in this regard.
